

I support the proposal RM-10867 as worded. Streamlining the license process is essential for keeping the amateur hobby alive. Experimentation is of key importance to this hobby, as this is what bring innovation, an this innovation should extend all the way down to the HF bands as well. As for removing the code, why stop at just the General. Leaving the CW band plans as they are and creating CW endorsements to the 3 license classes would encourage people to learn CW on their own, rather than requiring it. It is human nature that if there is a mode, like CW, that you have access to, but do not yet understand, that you will try to understand it.
